Ro. O God I haue an ill diuining soule,
Me thinkes I see thee now, thou art so lowe,
As one dead in the bottome of a tombe,
Either my eye-sight failes, or thou lookest pale.
Rom. And trust me loue, in my eye so do you:
Drie sorrow drinkes our bloud. Adue, adue.
Exit.

Iu. O Fortune, Fortune, all men call thee fickle,
If thou art fickle, what dost thou with him
That is renowmd for faith? be fickle Fortune:
For then I hope thou wilt not keepe him long,
But send him backe.

Enter Mother.

La. Ho daughter, are you vp?
Iu. Who is't that calls? It is my Lady mother.
Is she not downe so late or vp so early?
What vnaccustomd cause procures her hither?
La. Why how now Iuliet?
Iu. Madam I am not well.
La. Euermore weeping for your Cozens death?
What wilt thou wash him from his graue with teares?
And if thou couldst, thou couldst not make him liue:
Therfore haue done, some griefe shews much of loue,
But much of greefe, shewes still some want of wit.
Iu. Yet let me weepe, for such a feeling losse.
La. So shall you feele the losse, but not the friend
Which you weepe for.
Iu. Feeling so the losse,
I cannot chuse but euer weepe the friend.
La. Wel gyrle, thou weepst not so much for his death,
As that the villaine liues which slaughterd him.
Iu. What villaine Madam?
La. That same villaine Romeo.
Iu. Villaine and he be many miles a sunder:
God padon, I do with all my heart:
And yet no man like he, doth greeue my heart.

La. That

La. That is becausse the Trayt
Iu. I Madam from the reach of
Would none but I might venge m
La. We will haue vengeance fo
Then weepe no more, Ile send to
Where that same banniſht runnag
Shall giue him such an vnaccuſtom
That he shall soone keepe Tybalt
And then I hope thou wilt be sati
Iu. Indeed I neuer shall be satis
With Romeo, till I behold him.
Is my poore heart so for a kinſma
Madam if you could find out but
To beare a poyson, I would temp
That Romeo should vpon receit
Soone sleepe in quiet. O how my
To heare him namde and cannot
To wreake the loue I bore my C
Vpon his body that hath slaught
Mo. Find thou the means, and
But now ile tell thee ioyfull tidin
Iu. And ioy comes well in such
What are they, beseech your Lad
M. Well, well, thou hast a care
One who to put thee from thy he
Hath sorted out a sudden day of
That thou expects not, nor I look
Iu. Madam in happie time, wh
M. Marrie my child, early nex
The gallant, young, and Noble G
The Countie Paris at Saint Peter
Shall happily make thee there a i
Iu. Now by S. Peters Church,
He shall not make me there a ioy
I wonder at this haste, that I must
Ere he that should be husband co